In support of the District Strategic Plan, all participants will facilitate follow-up and modeling in their home schools to ensure consistent and systemic professional development.

Emerson School has drilled down the data during data chats of specific clusters in Language Art and Math for all grades for 3-4 year trends provided to us by the office of Assessment, Data Collection and School Improvement. Based on 4 year trends of flat lined lack of progress on specific skills we have identified targeted areas that need improvement for instructional delivery. Emerson School did not make AYP for the past two years by mastering only 38 out of 41 state requirements. We are currently addressing specific strands of each cluster area to achieve the 3 deficiencies. The model for professional development will be a 3-step process. First CMSCE facilitator will conduct a hands-on, standards-based workshop to teach new strategies and tools for a particular skill. The second step will be in-class modeling by the facilitator with observation by teacher participants. Reflection and discussion will follow the modeling. The third step in the process will be to have a grade-level teacher model the new learning in his/her class with other participants and the facilitator observing the teaching. Reflection and discussion will complete the process. In-class mentoring will follow.

J. Project CRISS (Creating Independence through Student-owned Strategies)

The Superintendent of Schools recommends, and I so move, adoption of the following:

RESOLUTION

Strategic Plan Link:

Goal 2: Human Resources

To improve the recruitment, retention and development of district staff

The Plainfield Board of Education recognizes that a highly qualified, competent, skilled, and dedicated workforce is essential in the success of the District, schools, and students. Therefore, it has provided the Superintendent of Schools the authority to employ a consultant in order to professionally develop teachers enabling them to ascertain best practices for integration in their daily instructional practices.

The conclusion of the 2008 – 2009 District Instructional Program Reviews identified a district wide need to improve and strengthen best practices in daily instruction. Project CRISS is an organization of consultants who have developed research-based proprietary best practices that are nationally recognized and proven to work in the classroom. Their strategies help students learn more effectively throughout the curriculum. The focus of these strategies is on teaching students how to learn through reading, writing, talking, and listening. From there, students learn to apply CRISS principles and philosophies in all subject areas.

The implementation of Project CRISS last year began with a three-day workshop in which participants experienced the philosophy and instructional strategies through a series of CRISS Strategic Learning Plans. The consultant provided processing and reflection time so that teachers could adapt CRISS to their own teaching situations. After understanding the CRISS principles and philosophy, participants learned activities to address the following:

- Identifying the Author's Craft and Design
- Understanding Patterns and Structures
- Active Strategies for Learning
- Organizing for Learning
- Informal Writing to Learn
- Formal Writing to Learn
- Vocabulary
- Assessment

The initial three-day workshop was followed-up with a two-day session in the Spring of 2009, whereby participants had opportunities to talk about how they were implementing the project and also had an opportunity to expand their knowledge based and understanding of the CRISS principles. The last phase of the 2008–2009 schools year included eleven (11) participants going through a week long Level II training whereby these individuals would develop the skills to become in district CRISS trainers. As an in district trainer, participants will be responsible for continuing to provide training and support to teachers across the district, and ensure the implementation of CRISS within the Plainfield Public Schools District. In an effort to continue with the implementation of Project CRISS, these same participants have to go through an apprenticeship under the direction of the consultant. This apprenticeship mandates that each apprentice conduct a three-day Level I training on the CRISS principles and strategies using the training material provided during the Level II training.

Level 1 Training – 30 staff members

Trainer's Fee $1,400 x 9* days=	$12,600
Books 150 at $65 each =	$9,750
Daily rate $100 x 3 days= $300 x 150 participants	$45,000
