

Structure and Function

A natural rock archway made of layered sandstone is the central focus. The arch is perfectly formed and stands on a rocky ledge. In the background, a desert canyon with mountains and a blue sky with some clouds is visible.

How things are shaped and put together determines what they do.

Where do you see a relationship between structure and function?

