

RU students spread the work about reading in Plainfield

http://www.nj.com/union/index.ssf/2016/02/ru\_students\_spread\_the\_work\_about\_reading\_in\_plain.html#inca-rt\_river\_index

By Christina Giannantonio|The Star-Ledger

February 29, 2016 at 9:00 AM, updated February 29, 2016 at 9:05 AM

Rutgers University student Mia Almeyda reads to students at Jefferson Elementary School on "Read to the Youth" day (.Plainfield Public Schools)

PLAINFIELD — On Feb. 19 students from Rutgers University took part in Plainfield Public Schools' "Read to the Youth" Literacy Campaign.

Thirty-five Rutgers University undergraduate students visited Evergreen, Woodland and Jefferson elementary schools as well as Plainfield High School to interact with students, share their love of reading with them and talk about their college experience. It is the fifth year Plainfield Schools has hosted the "Read to the Youth" program.

To submit school news send an email to union@starledger.com.